The appointment grows out of the change in the form of the Egyptian government, which was on February 28 formally recognized by the British government as an independent state, subject only to certain limitations respecting the safeguarding of the Sucz Canal and other special British interests.

Notice of the voluntary termination by Great Britain of its control over Egypt and of the accession of the first Egyption King in the person of Fund the First, has been served upon the State Department, which in turn immediately took the necessary steps to insure a proper diplomatic representation of America in the new court.
